Guidelines For Immunohistochemistry Qualification

Competency in Immunohistochemistry must be demonstrated through completion of an online examination. The purpose of this qualification is to assess the competency of examinees in the technical application of clinically relevant Immunohistochemistry techniques. Assessment of the examinee will be based on successful completion of the online examination. This examination consists of a 50-item multiple choice timed test (90 minutes in length), that the candidate must complete within a 60 day period from the date the candidate receives a voucher/password for testing. The test is taken online at the date and time of the candidate's choice on their own computer. Detailed information will be provided when examination eligibility is determined.

Time Limits, Revalidation and Use of Qualification

Candidates who complete the qualification process in Immunohistochemistry, including completion of the eligibility requirements and successful completion of an online examination, will receive documentation of their Qualification in Immunohistochemistry which is valid for three years.

This Qualification may be revalidated every three years upon payment of a fee (currently $50) and completion of 6 contact hours of acceptable continuing education/other activities related to Immunohistochemistry.

This Qualification will not, in itself, entitle the individual to membership in ASCP. Individuals must be ASCP certified as technician, technologist or specialist to be eligible for membership.
